CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) empowers children that have experienced abuse and neglect. Our organization recruits, trains and supports community volunteers who act as advocates in court on behalf of children. The advocate role provides a guide for the child and their caretakers, to ensure the child's best interests are supported and help to secure a safe and permanent home.

Each year, over 150 children in Austin, Colorado, Waller & Washington Counties are served by the work of CASA child advocates. Together, these special individuals dedicate their volunteer hours to ensure that the community's most vulnerable children are heard. CASA for Kids of South Central Texas is proud to have a history of serving children that have been abused and neglected for over 14 years.
